SECTION 7 – REGULATION FD

Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure

On January 23, 2025, FingerMotion, Inc. (the “Company” or “FingerMotion”) issued a news release to announce that it has been awarded contracts from various agencies to equip emergency response system vehicles with FingerMotion’s Advanced Mobile Integrated Command and Communication Platform (the “C2 Platform”), in order to enhance these agencies’ communication and coordination capabilities.

These contracts had been previously secured through a competitive public tender process that rigorously reviewed our technical capability, cost-effectiveness, and regulatory compliance. Our subsidiary, Shanghai JiuGe Information Technology Co., Ltd. (“JiuGe Technology”) emerged as the clear and preferred partner, offering tailored solutions that meet and exceed the requirements of our customers.

“This next step in our Emergency Response Program reaffirms our position as a trusted leader in the space of rapid emergency response solutions,” said Martin Shen, CEO of FingerMotion. “Our C2 Platform equipped emergency response vehicle bridges communication gaps during emergencies, enabling first responders to act swiftly and effectively while working on time-critical rescue and response efforts. These new contracts reflect the growing trust the emergency response agencies place in our solutions and our ability to consistently deliver innovation, and reliability. We plan to aggressively expand the market reach of our emergency response solutions through collaboration with our partners in this space.”

As previously noted, the program has been jointly designed and developed by JiuGe Technology and SAIC Motor Corporation Ltd. (“SAIC Maxus”). The emergency response vehicle features the Advanced Satellite Emergency Command Platform, which includes a unified in-vehicle communications unit, a smart PTZ (pan-tilt-zoom) camera, a satellite communications terminal for continuous video, voice, and data communication, an unmanned aerial vehicle, and a multimedia command and dispatch system integrating with multiple mobile (4G/5G), satellite, and private networks.

By incorporating mobile and satellite connectivity, the platform ensures uninterrupted communication for first responders and agencies even in the most challenging environments. This allows for accurate, critical information to be received in real-time, enabling effective decision-making and mission planning.
